What's New in the Bitdefender Antivirus Plus?

Bitdefender Anti-Virus Plus 2019 Bitdefender is an established name on the antivirus market, and for good reason. The company regularly ships reliable software that always ranks high in virus protection tests, while keeping performance impact to a minimum. There are multiple editions to choose from, namely Anti-Virus Plus, Internet Security and Total Security. The latest version of the basic edition, Bitdefender Antivirus Plus 2019, comes with one new major feature and multiple improvements, and it should be enough for most home users. Now comes with an anti-tracker The websites you visit typically collect information about you and your device, which is mainly used for personalization, user identification and targeted advertising. Third-party trackers are the most troublesome, as you may end up handing over personal information to various companies without even knowing it. Bitdefender Antivirus Plus 2019 enables you to prevent websites from collecting your data when browsing with Chrome, Firefox or Edge. For the first two, you will need to install the dedicated extensions from the Bitdefender agent. Reliable antivirus protection This shouldn't come as a surprise, but Bitdefender Antivirus Plus 2019 does a good job of protecting you from all kinds of threats, including ransomware, zero-day exploits and rootkits. The real-time scanning engine blocks them before they have a change of infecting your PC, and its performance impact is negligible. Aside from running quick scans to find threats, you can also create customized jobs and run them on a specific schedule. You can choose exactly which locations and items should be scanned, as well as set the task's priority. Impressive lineup of privacy features There are several ways Bitdefender Antivirus Plus 2019 can help you keep your private data secure. Aside from the aforementioned anti-tracker, it also comes with its own VPN, though you will have to deal with a daily traffic cap unless you upgrade your subscription. The product also includes a password manager, which helps you store your account credentials, credit card info and other types of sensitive data. If you want to get rid of something instead of secure it, the file shredder is also worth a mention, as it can prevent deleted files from being recovered even with specialized software. Lastly, you can take advantage of Safepay, Bitdefender's dedicated secure transaction browser. It is intended to prevent online fraud, and it can fill in credit card fields automatically.
