Sortilegio In English Subtitles

Greetings! I have been on this site numerous times before but I have never made a comment. I always just registered to say thanks to Dave and everyone else for putting out such an awesome show!! But the show is again in full swing this year and is now in its 'second inning' with more English subs coming in the next few weeks. As I have said before, I am a huge fan and one of those that tunes in to tune out and just watch some of the most amazing voices that ever graced our sub and dubbing canons! I am leaving in a few days to return home to Maryland where I will be working the show (and I assume the fall season) this year. I think that should be nice for the people that live in Maryland since it's a pretty nice tourist season this time of year. Anyway, I just wanted to make a quick post about the comment from a prior show that I was responding to. Here is what I was responding to: "Thanks for your real, informed perspective on these shows, I have always felt that the BWGT is the best when it's authentic and not the typical skimpy beach reads. Which only pales in comparison to the utter failure that is most of the CW re-runs. So, this is why I was surprised when I heard that they were including an English sub. It was the first I heard of it and I don't have a ticket, but even if I didn't, I would watch it in english anyway. I just find it sad that a show as fantastic as this one was limited to a very small audience to begin with, and that they were NOT going to make a serious effort to try and reach them. [1] As you know, the CW is the reason this sub is even here. One of the reasons we had to switch the BGW. so many of the fans that wanted to watch "The Nine" with the english sub, could no longer see it. I agree that we should have the english sub. and I'm not one of those that want to watch a dub or no subtitles, unless, of course, the english subtitles are as extensive as this one. (dub ching!) But I do know that seeing the original Spanish could only add to the enjoyment of this show. [2] And I appreciate your mentioning the other biased lists. However, I do not agree with the other lists. Even though it's not where this sub is coming from f30f4ceada
