Tiling windows Whether you work in Windows or Mac, if you're editing a photograph with the intention of tiling a number of images together, Photoshop has a feature called Frame Selection. This useful tool lets you select multiple (or all) frames and then rearrange them on screen in a big tiled area or _tiling window._ Here's how it works: 1. Click the Tiling Window button on the fly-out menu on the left side of the Layers panel. You may need to scroll the _Layers panel_ (refer to Figure 11-10) toward the bottom. 2. While pressing the Ctrl (+) key, click in the area you want to assemble in the Tiling Window. The frames appear tiled in front of the workspace. (The keystrokes that control this feature are Ctrl+T and Ctrl+F.) 3. Choose one of the following from the Fly-Out menu: * _Rectangular (8):_ To move or resize the entire tiling area. * _Square (16):_ To move or resize individual frames. * _Horizontal (16):_ To move or resize one frame only. * _Vertical (16):_ To rotate one frame only. 4. Drag, resize, and move the frames as needed. Figure 11-11 shows three frames aligned to create a tiling window. If a frame doesn't fit into the tiling area, you can drag it outside the area. Figure 11-11: Tiling windows are great for batch editing.

Color can be adjusted with the eyedropper tool that can be found in the toolbox or with the use of eyedroppers (more on these later). The Curves tool allows you to easily adjust the brightness, contrast and colour balance of an image. The Dodge and Burn tools let you apply light or dark adjustments to certain areas of a photo without affecting others. The Eraser tool removes pixels by 'blowing' them away and is useful for correcting mistakes. Photoshop has a set of built-in tools that can be accessed with the button tool in the toolbox, or by pressing the 'tool' icon above the document window. When the button tool is selected in the toolbox, several types of brushes and pens will appear and change according to the brush or pen being selected. The buttons above the toolbox windows also change depending on the tool being used. Photoshop's Pen Tool is used to define and edit text, create geometric shapes, and draw lines and splines. The pen tool can be seen by holding down the 'P' key and placing the pen icon into the document window, when the brush is selected, or you can click the Pen icon on the toolbox. Tools Once a tool is selected, it will appear in the main toolbar (next to the layer and brush windows) and menu bar. The font size can be adjusted in the size menu, and by dragging in the document window. In the main toolbar, the tool can be dragged to change its position. Tool properties that are relevant to a tool's position, such as size, colour, opacity etc. are shown in the tool's main toolbar and menu. When a tool is selected, the brush will change colour according to the tool type (e.g. pencil, paint, eraser). In this section we'll look at the main functions of the most common tools, and how to use them. Applying an effect Effects are powerful tools that can be used to alter the look of images. Photoshop's effects are often referred to as adjustment layers, as they work in the same way, and effects are often created as adjustment layers. When an effect is applied to an image, the adjustment layer will appear as a translucent layer above the original. Brush dialog box The Brush dialog box contains a large variety of brush tool options. Brushes can be stored in either the Windows menu (under 'Brushes'), or the main menu (

What's New In?

The Man In The White Tunic (1889) No one goes by the same name. No one takes the same name as another. Indeed, that must be what the Creation stories were all about. It should be so, because we have done that through our personalities, the way we have named our lives in our worlds. But, we have taken also the names of the great, the powerful, the illustrious. The man who has been known as Jesus, the man who is known as Michael, the great ones in their own world, in the world of the Invisibles. The Man In The White Tunic is such a man. He has taken that name to himself. He has taken the name of the Great Peter, the great Michael, the Lord of the Third Heaven. Indeed, what are we to make of this? You see him, the one of the White Tunic, the first born of the Sons of God, before he was God, before he was God, before he became God. Of course, it will be the Great Father who will take the name of the Great Father. It is of no matter. You see, the names are changing. When I am called the name of my Father, the Great One of the Third Heaven, you see, then the names and my identity are changing. But then, I myself also will become the Great One of the Third Heaven. There is no end to the changes, the changes. It will be the same. This must be so, and yet, what do we see? He is here, and yet, there is much more. We see the transformation, a change, a new, a second birth. We see his eyes, for they are different from what he was the Father in the World of Men, and yet, his eyes are the same, his personality is the same. And, we see the song, we hear the song, and we know it is the song of the Beautiful, the Love of the Firstborn, of the Firstborn who descended in the spirit of the Great Father. And, then, we see the Mother. Indeed, who is she? She is the Great Mother. Indeed, what was she before, she was a child. She was the one who became the Mother of the Only Begotten in the world of men, the only child in the world of man. She was our Mother. She was the Mother, the same Mother, the True Mother. She was with
