Well, Shovel Knight is here to bring you a BANGin' brand-new adventure. In this Buster Klass-ish platformer (really, it's not a sequel or anything) you'll once again play as (or, in case you can't read, that's Shovel Knight, you white racist) the hero as you travel across a variety of map screens and deadly platforms to expose the terrible truth behind the King of Cards and save the game! With Shovel Knight, it's a new era of platforming! You're free to duck, dive, swipe, and hop your way around each and every level, collecting items and defeating baddies as you work your way through this unique new adventure. Shovel Knight's new world is filled with a dynamic new locomotion system (think - Poison Arrow keypad-like control), new power-ups, hundreds of items, and platforming challenges that you've never seen in a game. Shovel Knight will ask you to be creative and that's a good thing because when you can't find a way to defeat a foe or navigate an obstacle you've got 20 items at your disposal. Gameplay is based on the two sandbox layers. The two-player mode has slightly different game mechanics and gameplay directions. Both of the sandbox layers will give you plenty of opportunities to customize gameplay, making the game much more enjoyable to play and approachable to new players, but the sandbox layers have a different set of limitations for the types of objects that you can create. These limitations will vary depending on which sandbox layer you're playing on, how many objects you have, and how powerful your wormhole is. The sandbox layers were created with the help of the players: there are plenty of ideas on the forum that led to changes in the sandbox layers.

Sandbox Layer 1: Sandbox Layer 1 is the easiest sandbox layer, since its limitations are mostly restricted to the types of objects that can be created. It is a stepwise type of sandbox, that allows you to create objects by directly dragging and dropping them into the sandbox. For this sandbox layer you can only create objects, that are selectable (see list in next paragraph). Your wormhole can contain no more than 100 objects of any kind. When playing with Wormhole Creator, you can add up to 100 more objects. That means, that your wormhole can contain up to 200 selectable objects. The items that you can create are, text, sound, homing beacon, scanner and definition list object. Sandbox Layer 2: Sandbox Layer 2 has a more complex structure and the object types are a bit different from the other sandbox layer, but it requires more patience and ingenuity. It is a visual sandbox, that allows you to create any type of object that you can see and that is selectable. Your wormhole can only contain no more than 200 visual objects. When playing with Wormhole Creator, you can add up to 200 more objects. That means, that your wormhole can contain up to 400 selectable objects. The selectable objects are: Text, sound, homing beacon, scanner, definition list object, nuclear bomb, fuel, firework, radiation, magnets and every item in the world (as you can see in item lists). Objects not selectable: Fluid object: fluid objects can be created but cannot be selected. Fluid object is mostly used as resource that was obtained through most unorthodox means (warfare, pickpocketing,
