In the early forms of Christianity, what was the idea of nobility? For example, was the idea of nobility, and for what reasons, included in early forms of Christianity? A: Noble is not included in the text of the Gospel of Matthew. But elsewhere in the New Testament, "Sons of Noblemen" are mentioned as disciples of Jesus: Jesus' disciples were called "Sons of Noblemen" because they were from the aristocracy of Israel (Mark 10:35; Luke 20:39). Matthew seems to have been the earliest Gospel that mentions members of the aristocracy as disciples of Jesus. And specifically, a Church Father, Tertullian, refers to this practice of associating the word "nobility" with the "Church". Here is the relevant passage from his book On the Presbyters, from Chapter 2: For we are not to wonder at this, that the bishop of the Church, that is, Christ himself, a nobleman, should want the priestly office, but because it is a public
