“Our goal was to unite the whole world with the FIFA vision: teamwork, passion, and respect for the opponent.” said David Rutter, Executive Producer at EA Sports. “We wanted to give players all around the world a way to meet and compete with their dream opponents. So we developed HyperMotion Technology to make that possible. Today, we can achieve something never done before with such an exact match-up.” HyperMotion Technology lets players choose one of 25 teams from over 100 countries to compete in an official, real-life FIFA football competition, match, or tournament. The demo, available via www.fifaworldcup.com, is a vital step in the launch process for FIFA 22. It allows fans to get a first look at gameplay performance on the game’s brand-new “revised” match engine, which uses the same game physics as FIFA 21, but with a range of new gameplay features that focus on the new features introduced in FIFA 22, along with FIFA and FIFA career mode improvements. The demo also gives players the chance to test out a couple of the new features included in the game. They include: Pitch Movement - Players can now move the pitch independent of the ball. - Players can now move the pitch independent of the ball. Headshot Controls - Players now have more control over the ball when they take a headshot. - Players now have more control over the ball when they take a headshot. Improved Ball Control - Players will now be able to move the ball in the air more quickly. - Players will now be able to move the ball in the air more quickly. Improved Step Over Checks - Players will have more control over the ball when controlling a pass with the Step Over move, making it easier to create a chance in tightly confined spaces. Flying Dribble - Players now have more control over the ball when dribbling and when using the player’s ability. With the help of some of the real-life FIFA World Cup players, EA SPORTS has also created a range of player previews that allow viewers to see these key new gameplay features in action. 2018 FIFA World Cup Russia™ Player Previews Barcelona FC - Philippe Coutinho Manchester

What's new:

- Fifa 22 will introduce The New Authentic Movements Engine (NA3). Make your way to the FIFA 22 launch party at the Tottenham Hotspur Stadium, London, on the day FIFA 22 releases worldwide to watch how passionate fans with EA SPORTS will be taking the EA SPORTS Competition to a new level of authenticity.
- Fifa 22 will also feature FIFA Ultimate Team head-to-head competitions. In addition, a new “FUT Draft” feature will let FIFA Ultimate Team fans choose players for the coming season.
- FIFA Ultimate Team introduced a new card rating (iR) for over 250 franchise players, plus new card ratings for teammates, coaches and league managers. iR will be tracked on both the FMIC and FUT cards.
- New animations and celebrations will allow for personalized movements in all player species - from best cases to worst cases. The game introduces Flexible Skeleton Skeleton so players can customize many aspects of their “Build” including Quickness, Agility, Power, Stamina and more. The new Build Animation System will include Dynamic Body and Skeleton sets that can be animated during gameplay. These animations will allow players to truly customize their build types to become more authentic.
- The new transitional animation system was designed from the ground up to allow for maximum realism during gameplay. This allows every moment of player control and movement to be customized and animated. There are also new animations for player models, goal celebrations and on-ball actions.
- This new and tuned off-ball system gives you the ability to react to any situation on the pitch. Passes and dribbles can be disrupted by player collisions, off-balanced passes and punches, and recovery runs are drastically reduced when players fall to the ground.
- In addition, tackles are a very important and challenging aspect of the game. With full player verification, FIFA 22 tackles will hit all the right notes between a humorous incident and a potentially dangerous collision.
