A fundamental understanding of the theological principles associated with the reverent treat of the Dead is what makes a man of God. I imagine it would be like going to see a doctor; I'd want to know what the problem was before they said something like "Glory to the Lord." I think you raise a good point. (Some will be offended by the unintended reference. I am not saying that this is the primary reason, mind you, but I do think it is an effect.) For those of us here on planet earth, it is easier to grasp what "saving souls" means. We are possessed of a limited amount of time here on earth. In the remote and foreign land of some -- but not
