Poly(anhydride) films containing multiple polyanhydride precursors and simultaneous administration of bioactive and water soluble compounds. The preparation of multicomponent implants composed of polyanhydride layers and encapsulated bioactive compounds is a focus of numerous research studies. In this study, two bioactive compounds were prepared into polymeric implants by co-delivering them with multiple precursors of polyanhydrides. The coatings were made of poly(anhydride) layers obtained by the ring-opening polymerization of two anhydrides - sebacic acid (SA) and hexahydrophthalic anhydride (HHPA). Small amounts of vanadium pentoxide (V₂O₅) and soluble gentamicin were co-administered to the polymeric layer. Water-soluble gentamicin has been chosen due to its
