The World Police manage to keep order, but they have never been able to beat the mysterious "Black Spider" who has shown up out of nowhere. In the West, there is one organization, The Tyrannian World Government. They seem to be able to keep order and protect the territory they've claimed for themselves. Then, strange monsters begin appearing in the East and have started to spread through Europe. The World Governments have never seen anything like this before. In 2024, a group of explorers have discovered a new continent by the name of "Phiandara" in the Far East. What's new in Peasant Knight:

into the unknown with a touching love story in this unforgettable spinoff adventure from the mega-hit Roald Dahl books. Join Timothy for a thrilling ride through the darkest corners of the mind. Roald Dahl's beloved characters Blinky, Binky and Naughty return in this heart-wrenching fantasy and confession of unrequited love. Read more > Roald Dahl's The Witches is a fantasy novel, the first of the four books in a series titled the Witches. It was first published in 1983 by Jonathan Cape in London. Dahl wrote the book for young adults. The novel, not only tells the story of Inga and Ludo, but also has a major part in a love story between the characters. It takes place in a big city, where it is full of wickedness, but then decides to send a child into the world with them to be on their side and follow the witch; as the novel starts, Inga is the witch's new assistant and carries out a revenge mission to kill the Grand Vizier of the Middle Kingdom. However, when she falls in love with Ludo, she goes out of her plan. The story continues, and Inga and Ludo form a new family together with the child, but they are constantly threatened by spies from other realms. Here are the literary characteristics of The Witches. Poetic Elements The Witches has a great number of episodes and symbolism, and there are no typos in it. The symbolism is limitless; there are some scenes where the author uses the signs of the zodiac or the symbolism of the Chinese calendar. This helps to remind of the beliefs of the authors of the novel, and they reflect the whole life of the character. And most importantly, the author produces their own stylistics and symbolism that emphasizes the word of the supernatural. Some of the elements are ancient ritual chants, a typical sound of burning incense, Dragon's Blood, the smell of cats, and some of them are recreations that either speak of Pandora's Box or show an ancient boat that takes you to the sea of the souls of those who have died. The casting and staging are also noteworthy. There are some scenes with shadows and pointed lines, which stem from the Chinese influence and also the many paintings that are associated with Chinese inspiration. The scenery is also not wanting; the city has different settings (mostly the apartments of the house) that are unique by their own standards, so it is impossible to ignore them while reading.
