Ship A Ship B Ship A: Player 1 Ship B: Player 2 Ship A represents the player that will control the player's Ship and Ship B the player that will control the enemy player's ship. Controls Ship A is controlled using WASD keys. Movement is done in the direction the arrow is facing. Toggle switch for FPS and View mode (default: V). Snap shot should be set to auto. Ship B is controlled using Arrow keys. The best way to visualize the ship is to use a mouse to move the ship. Damage is not applied until the opponent is able to hit you. Damage numbers and hitting mechanics will become clear when you play online. Antiques The Antiques on your ship are collected as you defeat enemies. Loot them for credit, and use them to upgrade the level of your ship. The higher the level, the faster and more powerful you will be. Leveling Your Ship and Antiques When you defeat your enemies, your Ship gets one point for every enemy ship you defeat. You earn XP for each level of Ship you achieve. The Antiques on your Ship are collected as you defeat enemies. Loot them for credit, and use them to upgrade the level of your ship. The higher the level, the faster and more powerful you will be. All of the Antiques have a bonus effect on your ship. For example, "The Wrecker" increases your Health and damage. "The Hitter" increases your Firepower and damage, "The Refiner" increases your speed and fuel, and "The Mechanic" increases your reload speed and gives you a temporary shield. Choose Antique Effect

In modern electronic systems, it has been requested to develop a highly integrated DRAM with a large capacity at a high speed. Therefore, a capacitor with a large capacity has been used in the DRAM. Recently, the DRAM has been developed at a high speed. This causes a drawback that data signals degrade due to a capacitance coupling of the signal lines and common gate lines. The capacitor itself has a drawback that a capacitor area decreases if the cell size is decreased to increase the capacity. In order to solve the problem with the capacitor capacity, a capacitor of a three-dimensional structure has been considered. According to this structure, a large capacity can be obtained, without decreasing the size of the capacitor. However, a capacitor of the three-dimensional structure has been difficult to produce.The evolution of patient-centered care. I am a little wary of the round-robin-is-better-than-switch-a-packet mentality that TCP has... I have read all the agreed-upon TCP/IP specifications, and I like the simplicity of them - but I feel like there is a bit of an overdependence on TCP across much of the net - especially I am thinking of the HTTP world where it seems like people are trying to replicate the world
