Objective: Miss the millennium? Do you really want a new day to start on another planet? The timing may be wrong, but nothing says "I love you" better than an engraved steam whistle. The Reflection of Mine offers a unique world where the players can explore new planets, meet new species and hand-make their own ride through the cosmos! Explore a living universe, hand-crafted by you! Share it with your friends through Steam Workshop. Features: - Discover the world of Reflection of Mine on your computer - Explore the seven planets - Craft your own ride through the cosmos - Hand-built using the Steam Workshop - Include 22 Steam-optimized songs - Add your name to the Credits - 20 gamemodes and loads of options - Local-multiplayer in split-screen and online - Support for multiple users in single rooms with Steam Chat and separate chat channels - a compatibility guide in the manual - After processing one template tile the same as on the left the next tiles get processed along with the first one: The actual code is processing one tile after another. We do not need to pass over all tiles of the original map. The "TileProcessingTime" simply needs to be increased for more tiles are processed. We give an example:

===== # target "$LASTONE"
"$LASTONE" # for (_,_) in [[0,"-1"]]; do [[ "${EAST}" ==
$EAST || "${WEST}" == $WEST || "${NORTHEAST}" ==
$NORTHEAST || "${NORTHWEST}" == $NORTHWEST ||
"${SOUTHEAST}" == $SOUTHEAST || "${SOUTHWEST}"
== $SOUTHWEST || "${SOUTHEAST}" == $SOUTHEAST
&& "${SOUTHWEST}" == $SOUTHWEST &&
"${NORTHEAST}" == $NORTHEAST &&
"${NORTHWEST}" == $NORTHWEST && "${WEST}" ==

---

$WEST && "${EAST}" == $EAST || 0 == $ZERO]]; do [[
"${TYPE}" == $SPRINKLE || "${TYPE}" == $CORPSE ||
"${TYPE}" == $LASTONE || "${TYPE}" == $

Features Key:

Simple to play but interesting to master
Easy to use
Simple yet multi-player challenge

Gameplay Introduction

The current version of the game is an oriental board game similar to Go or Chess. Means, the game is one-on-one yet there is two sides for interaction and the game is about individuals relating with others, the game is called Lucid Path.

It is interesting to note that very few global games are played for fun. Lets have a look at what specific game states.

State of Game

Here is a simplified view of the game for the first few seconds you start playing the game.

State 1

White has no pieces, Black has no pieces, each side has two more pieces than the opponent.

State 2

White has two pieces on the board, Black has two pieces on the board, Black has two pieces on the board, white has two pieces on the board.

State 3

White has two pieces on the board, Black has one piece on the board, Black has two pieces on the board, white has one piece on the board.

This is the flow of the first few seconds in the game.

The Pieces and Rules

Each piece has a name that could be translated as position (precedence), strokes (power), air, wood, stone, tile, cat and mouse.

As the player's are at the same location/position, they call each other by their counterparts location. (For example, White's Middle White call Black's Middle Black, or simply Middle ' )

Each power is associated with 1 point, the first player who's luck gives up depends on the rules and regulations of the game.

Rule #1: No two pieces

This game can turn into an epic nightmare. You will be in control of the helicopter with a limited amount of ammunition. Make sure that your weapons can shoot zombies with a lot of power. You can use them during the day and night. If you use the infrared device, you will be able to see zombies even when it is night. They won't be visible

What's new:

In the room with the sofa, there was silent movement and murmured talking. It must have been hard for the two men to not draw any conclusions from the silence and conversations going on at the other side of the wall. The noise in the small room vibrated into my ears, though the rumbling of my stomach suggested that not all of it was conversation. The owner of the vocal was still working away in the kitchen, but it seemed that he had more to say to the second man than they had anticipated. I tapped my nails against the wooden tabletop and slowly clenched my fists underneath the table. "You'd better get going, or you're about to miss the call." The doorway to the room from the kitchen spilled out a brilliant light, shining on a man who was still wearing the same sterile white coat as he had before. The man was much shorter than the one from before, though. While the first was quite muscular and broad-shouldered, the second was more slim and compact. "Mr. White?" The silhouette in the doorway made me uneasy. "What did this time, little one?" "Humans." I couldn't contain my exasperation. "I haven't seen a single one in ages." "That's fine." The man smiled at my anger. "Even though one might have your form, it's still easier for me to control them than they are controlling me." I leaned against the wall of the room and made a tsking noise. "Why don't you just use them and go home?" A few moments later, the owner of the kitchen walked through the doorway of the room. He was staring at the silhouette. "Who the hell are you, Mr. White?" "Oh, my apologies, you mustn't have noticed me." The small man spoke almost in the same tone of voice as he had before. "I'm just returning someone who came for the scholarship money." "Scholarship money?" "Yes. The money the government pays to have a child spend the academic year with a human family. The name of the money is Student Exchange Grant, isn't it? I was given that name." "I thought the human world was destroyed, or something... I didn't know you even had any child." The owner of the kitchen stared at the man in shock. That was stupid. The government did not have any funding to let people go
