“Stellaris is a 4X [explore, expand, exploit, extinguish] space strategy sandbox game, the likes of which are currently a rarity in the gaming world. Starting you are forced to quickly deal with hostile races, construct outposts, and explore a barren wasteland where a lesser being like yourself has to struggle to eat and survive” Features Stellaris: Utopia will have hundreds of races, with tons of diverse civilizations. War, diplomacy, and trade are all important aspects of the game, and there will be many, many decisions to be made. Manage exploration, research, war, diplomacy, trade, politics, colonization, and much more. Each race will have a unique culture, with distinct leaders and power structures, their own starships, outposts, and unique mechanics, bringing a new level of complexity to the galaxy. Hundreds of unique races. Each has a distinct culture, leadership structure, race ships, unique systems, outposts, etc. allowing for a complete galaxy with a wide variety of personalities and cultures. Hundreds of Alien Races with their own unique empire structures and gameplay mechanics, including asteroid mining, colonial technologies, very different combat, social and science systems, and much more. Hundreds of planets and systems to colonize, explore, and conquer. Every system has multiple planets, even in the large systems and Utopian systems. Planets will be very different in regards to life, atmosphere, resources, etc. allowing for a huge amount of diversity in the explored galaxy. A massive map with hundreds of systems and planets, containing lots of space, and with lots of potential of space for expansion. Hundreds of technologies with lots of possibilities for different uses. Hundreds of star systems with hundreds of moons, asteroids, and planets to colonize. Hundreds of unique technologies. Hundreds of unique units. Strategic/Mechanics As you explore the cosmos you will find different alien races, outposts, asteroids and planets to explore, and there will be lots of things to keep you busy. You have to constantly make decisions about what to do next, and how to use what you found there. This is part of the Stellaris philosophy to give the player a wide spectrum of options when making a decision. Some decisions will be immediate and obvious, while others will have consequences that are hidden. Each race has different leaders, structures, and they will

DOA6 Summer Breeze Collection - Kasumi Crack + PC/Windows

Purchase Build for $3.99 to unlock the game.If You Already Own This GamePlease read below.-----Game Description: It's a table game of skill and luck, with just enough strategy to get you excited. You walk the board, matching colors, attributes, and (if you roll randomly) stats. The game ends when all five of your vehicles run out of fuel and the board is completely drivable. If you're lucky, you can use a special optional mechanic to push your vehicles along for one extra movement. If you're a little less lucky, you could be stuck with a handful of vehicles that won't move much further. In the end, you win or lose, based on your luck of the draw. You can play with two to five players, or five to ten when playing in four-player game mode.-----How to Play: There are two ways to play: The "Instant Play" option is for people who want to get right into the action. Here, you will play with no tools, buy vehicles, or determine dice rolls. You'll get the chance to choose any available vehicle to move with, with the lowest number of points having priority. If you win the dice roll, you move. If you lose the dice roll, you move. The game is over when you have no vehicles left. The "Continue" option gives you the opportunity to buy buildings at different cost points, and also lets you roll dice to determine your starting placement. You will play from here, and be able to purchase and place buildings at any time. Each building corresponds to a point value, each "layer" is a different cost. The game ends when you reach your predetermined point limit.-----Optional Buildings Available:ChanceRiskOne of the most exciting and original ways to play this board game is by allowing you to set the price of optional buildings by rolling the dice. These buildings are all optional, so you can build them or not at any time, so each game is a little different. If you'd like a chance to roll for a chance to win a prize or have your game experience recorded for YouTube, we recommend purchasing the Chance building. Chance runs for $2.00, and you'll need to purchase a number of buildings equal to the number of rolls available. For example, if you purchase the "Chance" building, you will receive 5 rolls of the dice. Rolling it again will not change the outcome of the roll. You can gain the same chance for free by completing a Mystery Roll

ADEN (Reuters) - A failed explosion by Yemeni rebels in the southern city of Aden on Sunday injured two civilians, prompting renewed U.N. warnings for the region as well as the capital Sanaa. Pro-Hadi government forces said they found one tonne of explosives in the aftermath of the blast, which hit one of the main roads in the city. Yemen's al Houthi-run Supreme Revolutionary Committee (SRCC) issued a statement denying any involvement. "What happened... shows the dangers of armed groups continuing to use unexploded ordnances (UXOs)," said Stephane Dujarric, spokesman for U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres. "It's a game of hide-and-seek." Sunday's blast came only a day after the U.N. Security Council warned the Houthis not to use explosives. Residents in Aden say their city is plagued by mortars and guns launched by both sides. "We have never experienced this in Aden before," said Adnan Al-Basha, a 40-year-old teacher, adding that he had seen civilians shot in the streets. "No movement is now safe." A car bomb in Sanaa in August 2017 killed more than 100 civilians. The ongoing Yemen conflict, which pits the internationally recognized government of President Abd-Rabbu Mansour Hadi against the Houthis and forces loyal to former President Ali Abdullah Saleh, has killed at least 10,000 people and displaced more than 3 million. The conflict has prompted Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates to target the Houthis with an air campaign that has killed hundreds of civilians, including children.
