If you can not find it, you can still ask a friend who, when the government or the husband used the condominium as their primary residence. Mr. Penaranda has the burden to show that the court abused its discretion in a Rule 60(b)(3) motion. See Bonds v. Mortensen & Lange, 717 F.2d 123, 124 (8th Cir. 1983). Mr. Penaranda argues that the court should consider his current living conditions and his age when determining whether he is entitled to relief. The court may consider "whether the petitioner is now financially able to litigate the merits of the case," but such ability is not determinative. Id. The court may also consider whether Mr. Penaranda's failure to 4 achieve the former success was attributable to Mr. Penaranda's own negligence. See id. In this case, the court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion because Mr. Penaranda was still in the same position he was in when he failed to appear at the evidentiary hearing. See id
