a29 super tucano fsx download In recent years, various electronic components using a ceramic circuit substrate made of a ceramic material have been developed. For example, a low-thickness circuit substrate made of AlN or AlN/Al—Hf—B material is formed, and solder bumps are formed on the surface of the circuit substrate. Then, the solder bumps are mounted on a substrate formed of a ceramic material such as a silicon material, and are disposed on the circuit substrate. The substrate is then stacked on the ceramic circuit substrate. The semiconductor devices or electronic components using the circuit substrates described above do not have ceramic substrates, but have substrates made of AlN or AlN/Al—Hf—B materials. The circuit substrate made of AlN or AlN/Al—Hf—B material is a material having high electric conductivity, and can be made at a low price. For example, in Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2002-334298, a method for manufacturing an electronic component by stacking a ceramic substrate and a silicon substrate is disclosed. The ceramic substrate is formed of AlN or AlN/Al—Hf—B material. In Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 11-243353, a method for manufacturing an electronic component by stacking a dielectric substrate and a wiring substrate is disclosed. The wiring substrate is formed of AlN or AlN/Al—Hf—B material.
