It's a harsh world where the only life you know will soon be cast aside. When the strange evil of the world begins to invade the blissful countryside, a young victim flees to the safety of the mysterious Inn and a world of terrible creatures for help. With the help of the Innkeeper and the odd but friendly inhabitants, you must save the girl and slay the creatures before it's too late. Features: A haunting new story with an enigmatic Innkeeper And you thought you were too young to play! Ages 7 and up. The first in a new, original series. A fresh take on the classic "point and click" adventure genre. At least 8 hours of gameplay At least 2 unique endings 3D models and hand-drawn animation Multiple languages to choose from Retina display support Personalize your experience "The first-person imagery works well with the point-and-click mechanics." 4/10 - Destructoid About The Developer: In this hectic world, only 1 thing matters: survival! But don't let that sink your ship, there are other things that matter; games, so stop by and say hi if you like to play them! About Zero Degrees Games Zero Degrees Games is the creation of two friends who have been making games for a few years now. After many years they decided to focus solely on point-and-click games, and thus Among the Innocent was born. After a difficult start, the game is now enjoying its second year, and the release of its soundtrack is coming soon! Easter Eggs - If you don't see the Easter Egg, you need to go up to 99, choose any motion ball, and multiball. Once in the main menu, choose the "Mode" option (You should see a fish in a giant aquarium, if you don't then you got the wrong option), and move the fish to the end of the Game Over section (You should see a large fish with a magnifying glass) - Once you get to the secret multiball mode, you'll need to move the fish to where it says "Unlock" and you'll see the Easter Egg. - You can also skip all the way to the Easter Egg by setting the game to auto-attack and destroying all the balls with a maximum of five hits. - For any fans of the game, I'm building a hall of fame on my youtube channel. I would love it if you could check it out and subscribe so you can see updates. - For people who get stuck, start in auto-attack mode and click on one of the ball that it says "Power Ball" and it'll pop up on screen. Hit it with the auto-attack and it'll give you your power ball to continue. - You will get an error when the game starts if you have the Game Genie Code. To see what it is, go to which will give you the code. However, the code won't work until you turn off the controller's "dedicated" option. - Unlocked and unmodified universes are linked. What's new:

“I like hardware stuff to be honest. I think it's more exciting to build a physical object that people use. I like to go to Maker Faires, I've been to lots of Maker Faires around the world and Canada and Japan. I've been to hundreds of them and I really enjoy just being surrounded by people who are making things. I really enjoy hearing they are makers,” said Lisel Mueller, the co-founder of My Megamix in Toronto. “I’ve been to makerspaces, and I think one of the best things is the community, and what it can do to inspire each other.” My Megamix is a little slice of heaven for technologically savvy Arduino enthusiasts, things like Arduino micro-controllers without a screen, but it's also a big space for experimental hardware projects. The space is curated by a group of artists and designers who were forced to re-locate when the previous landlord took away their ability to make their studios portable. My Megamix came to life when they opened up their own space in early 2015. While the majority of creative pros and studios in Toronto at the time were moving into storefronts like DIY Megastore and Spacing, My Megamix has remained small thanks to the blockchain technology behind their very own Decentralized Collective. Blockchain is the technology that underpins the ethereum cryptocurrency and digital ledger to keep record of digital transactions. My Megamix has been working with an organisation called Zkölf (“coin” in Finnish, incidentally) who is building a similar token that would enable artists to set up their own crowdfunding mechanisms. My Megamix is officially a co-operative model for the community and is directed by a board of directors, but the majority of its profits will be donated to other artists who use their space. “It’s a membership-based model,” said one of the members who wished to remain anonymous, “It's mostly those who own the larger share of other portfolios are in the position to contribute the most. As long as we have enough subscribers to cover our expenses, we're fine.” “We don't mind telling people to be wary, if people are uncomfortable with that. In the beginning when we weren't even open yet, when we were just sort of passing it around, a few people shared a little bit of their
