I am new to android and I would like to know how I can find out what part of the screen the button is located on? I have noticed that if I hold the button for 5 seconds it will be assigned to a certain coordinate but I would like to know what part of the screen the button is at. Thanks A: To get the location of your screen on the device you can use Camera.getCurrentFocus() and measure the coordinates of the centre point of the screen. Location location = new Location(""); location.setLatitude(37.739605517); location.setLongitude(122.398048904); location.setAltitude(0); location.setAltitudeAccuracy(0); location.setCoordinate(location.getLatitude(), location.getLongitude(), location.getAccuracy()); This will give you the co-ordinates of the centre point of the screen. You will have to convert this to pixel value using the device density and then display it to the user. Forcing medical device makers to help fund generic access to their products could benefit consumers. But it comes at a cost. The potential for gaming the process could tarnish the brand of other device makers, making them less willing to participate or increase their premiums. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a disk drive for driving a disk for a magnetic disk, and to a servo field forming device capable of forming servo fields of a plurality of types. 2. Description of the Prior Art FIG. 10 is a diagram showing a sector format for a conventional magnetic disk. As shown in FIG. 10, a sector is divided into data region 401 and servo region 402. Data region 401 is divided into two data regions 401a and 401b. A servo field 403 is provided at a position between the data region 401a and data region 401b of the servo region 402. The servo field 403 is composed of a Gray code and its signal waveform is normally such as that shown in FIG. 11A. As shown in FIG. 11A, the servo field 403 normally has a recording pattern of data of 1 bit (of "1" or "0") every 3 bits in the Gray code. A head 404 records servo fields 403 as illustrated in FIG. 11B. The head 404 needs to be accurately positioned in order to record the servo field 403 accurately. A servo field 500 shown in FIG. 12A is recorded between the servo field 403 and another servo field 403A. The servo field 500 includes data similar to that of the servo field 403, and is recorded, for example, as one servo field 500 per one track. When a head records the servo fields 403 and 500, it is affected by a disturbance. Accordingly, the head 404 needs to be accurately positioned. A conventional disk drive, which makes it possible for a servo field of the sector format shown in FIG. 10 to be recorded in a servo field of a sector format in which servo fields are not provided, is disclosed in the Japanese Laid-open Publication No. 61-291081. This conventional disk drive forms two servo fields in one sector. A signal waveform is shown in FIG. 11C. When the disk drive
