Afghanistan '11: Royal Marines is the newest game in the Afghanistan '11 series. With over 3 months of unique data from the combat operations in Afghanistan and more than 1500 hours of gameplay, this is the closest thing to a realistic simulation experience of the late war than can be found. In Royal Marines you play as the British forces, with all of the NATO allies or Afghanistan, with the Soviets and the other factions. Features: 13 fully customised factions with customizable rules 15 different scenarios and campaigns Is set in the late 20th century, in the "Good War" phase, when NATO has just invaded Afghanistan. It is playable in the winter when the weather is more extreme. Features many realistic elements of the late war in Afghanistan, from the snowy mountains to the harsh desert. Experience incredibly intense firefights as you engage in close quarter combat throughout Afghanistan. Get inside the mindset of the British forces as you fight a war in the mountains of Afghanistan. Learn the reasons why coalition forces were sent to Afghanistan and what exactly they were there for. Enjoy a realistic campaign experience, with countless hours of unique content, from Afghanistan '11 Get the whole package of Royal Marines, Afghanistan '11 and a great game in one!AFG KIA : 87,000 Total casualties : 219,000AFG Losses : 79,000 NATO : 92,000 ISAF : 0 AFG Victory : 58,000 AFG Losses : 21,000 Total Years of Conflict : 17 Actions and Losses during the War: 29,000 Total War Casualties : 3,000 Deaths as a result of War: 30,000 Deaths by War: 1,200,000 AFG KIA : 87,000 Total casualties : 219,000AFG Losses : 79,000NATO : 92,000 ISAF : 0 AFG Victory : 58,000 AFG Losses : 21,000 Total Years of Conflict : 17 Actions and Losses during the War: 29,000 Total War Casualties : 3,000 Deaths as a result of War: 30,000 Deaths by War: 1,200,000 • Complete game rules, 3 Army variants, 6 scenarios • CQB/COIN rules • Expanded Civilian considerations • American Faction completely updated • Additional missions, rules, new units and a new supply

Features Key:

Total freedom in 3 different layouts and 2 tricks

The game gives you the possibility to reach your goals with curves, combos, tricks, flips etc. That's the basic information about the skateboard rules. But the game is much more than that.

Degree Of Difficulty:

- The game has its own scoring system. It's very simple, based on time at level
- There is generally no game over if you make a mistake. You can let go of the board to start again. So, if you manage to repeat the trick for the right answer you're definitely going to pass
- No limits applied to the tricks you can do. You can go as fast as you want when hitting the tricks. But often you feel a little bit of time pressure

• The overall tone of the games is an action game with an "arcane novel" aesthetic. • Game player interface was inspired by ancient and medieval illuminated manuscripts. • Layout is optimized for the iPad with a resolution of 1,200 dpi. • The game controls are designed to be smooth and intuitive so that players don't get too distracted trying to figure out how to play. • Lots of puzzle history is thrown in! • There are mostly 8-bit style graphics, but with some contemporary 8-bit color. • Lots of anachronistic fictional alphabets. • Deep quantic alphabetic and numeral systems (the one below is for up to 210 unique characters). • Unobtrusive tutorials, hints, and documentation for non-gamer players. The language selections and alphanumeric systems used in Archa-aid were selected to be a practical combination of fun and educational, challenging but still accessible for beginners. The games' learning curve is rather average as they are intelligent and not too fiendishly difficult. With the exception of the English language, all the games in Archa-aid were developed and prototyped by me in less than a year, with some help. I did develop a lot of content in the course of creation of all the games. It is the first game of its kind, so I don't have any historical comparisons, but I'm expecting that it will not be the last. Archlyon is not yet ready, it is currently only a roadmap.

Escape From Violet Institute [32|64bit]

Fukagawa City was a land where the supernatural is alive and well. Witches and spirits exist and exist freely in the city that bears the name "Witch City," and the real-time battle system that thrives in the city is always a lot of fun! With the help of a mysterious, powerful Witch who summoned you, you're going to enter the battlefield in the form of Kasumi! Characteristic of a Witch: Kasumi looks like a really cool witch! Her black hair and garish red-orange hair reflect the red glowing power of the Witch. Attire: Every Witch costume has their own unique outfit, so select your costume carefully! The outfit used by Kasumi is crafted from satin fabric. Kasumi's costume features a dramatic design that accentuates her bust. Kasumi's costume also reveals a sense of elegance, so be sure to select a costume that accentuates your features! Weapon: Every Witch costume has its own unique weapon, but Kasumi's weapon is a steel whip. Kasumi's whip can cut through enemies in a single swipe, so it's a much-needed weapon on the battlefield! Health: There are no weak points in the witch costumes, so Kasumi's health doesn't decrease or anything. Even so, if you get your Witch costume wet in battle, your costume's life will be reduced by 20%. You can regain 20% of your health by standing still in the world map for three minutes or if you get hit by an enemy! Defending the Real-Time Battle System When battling as Kasumi, you'll see a dramatic, sexy, and extravagant scene as you take down the enemies with a large array of weapons and equipment! In the real-time battle system, your Witch costume is your key weapon. Attack and use various weapons, and then use the combat skills of your costume to decimate the enemies. Finally, the types of enemies will differ. Be sure to enjoy the different cast of enemies as you deal and take down enemies with different armor and weapons! Cover Attack and Chain Skills! Carry out a powerful attack using just Kasumi's weapon! While you're busy with the enemy, you can use the key battle skills of your costume, such as "Ground Quake,"

FORT MYERS, Fla. -- At 22 years old, Nestor Cortes hit what has to be the worst home run of his career. "It felt like a 5-ounce missile," he said. The anxiety had been building as soon as "Moises" hit the wall in about 10 feet of left-center. Moises was a boy in his village in Paraguay long before he was drafted by the Minnesota Twins and signed. He'd dreamed of that moment for a long time, when somebody who would love him, suddenly -- a woman with blond hair set in a bun and wide brown eyes that tried to hold his gaze no matter where he looked, and a dark-skinned Mexican American man in a blue button-down shirt -- said, "Nestor Cortes, you're my son." A few weeks later, when his mother had the chance to see a photo of him, she smiled. "Eh," she said. "You look like a Nerf ball, you know?" In October, he enrolled at New Mexico State and used baseball to find a way out. He worked out with cameras set up at hitter's eye level, standing in front of three goals and one target on the brick infield of the baseball field. He had a three-point stance and a routine, knowing almost exactly when he'd be throwing, and never second-guessing it. On the day of his debut, he did that routine four times in front of a state that had never seen him before. Afterward, he said, "I felt like I died." Moises pulled himself together, walked back to his dorm at night, curled up in a bed and called his stepfather. The two were the same age when they'd first met, their first conversation about baseball when Moises took up at age 10. "He said, 'You need to come back,'" Cortes said. "I said, 'Yeah,
