As the corporate might goes forth in continuing to undermine and bury the country with all the financial voodoo and reaping gains they haven't seen in half a decade, a small number of dissenters are beginning to get in front of the bulldozer and build a platform from which to begin the real political revolution. There is a perception of the corporate state as the default one, and a persistent feeling that the power of the people is still that of second-class citizens with a world to win, and a pathway to the true American dream still largely destroyed by what Peter Thiel, one of the most important and prolific visionaries of the tech and mega-rich elite, termed "The Great Chain Of Being". Corporations are instruments of the private-for-profit in our society, and as such, they are there for personal profit. This is the only way that the hyper-competitiveness of the stock market works, the only way that American, and by default, global capitalism operates. For this reason, a number of activists have been directly calling out the oligarchy as a construct

What's new in Ball Fall:

Hello all, I think my question should have some info. It's not about me personally, but just what is known as Offspring Fling. I think I know it all but I will explain anyway. 1) In the Dawn of War Universe you see pictures and names of units such as 'Gemini' which the main families have been heralding for a while. Some of us know about the original game 'Aeon of Strife' which was created under the name of Kris Beavert (Macroincarnation). The founder of Moonlander Studios made the Dawn of War series first game in 2004. Since then the IP's have devolved around 36 different versions of the same list from different groups and individuals. Some of the seeds got crossbred. Others are just the same list in different forms. My question here is do you think it would be possible for a group of the original units that make up the original list in the 38th Century War Series to play together. That means, the actual original units that make up Aeon of Strife. Specifically what is known as Offspring Fling. There is a link on the site of the dark council that one can get to (where you can play around using the old lists as long as you are willing to teach others as they may not be familiar with GW's rules. Initially one of the people interested in joining that list was a man by the name of Dee Vancher (aka Godzilla). I think he belongs on my list of Gods(This was not to say that Dee was not a part of the off spring but as I was writing this post I thought that Dee and I make a pretty good team when we play Dawn of War every once in awhile. So what is Offspring Fling? They are made up from whatever is available from both IP's. No cheating mind you. It is all testing initially for learning's sake that hopefully is won't get diluted by other groups later down the road. Those Dice 2.0 SUT's are the ones in question. A few people close to me have been using that SUT in regular play. Honestly I have no idea what are they are trying to do. They look like list updates on paper but what is the problem. I personally can't get and use it to test the Eubatar's of just how much of what Kris

Welcome to the third addition to the Coloring Game series. Coloring Game 3 is a game in which you are asked to complete puzzles using a variety of images. You can move the images around the canvas to match colors in the image. You can also trace the outline of the image. In middle-sized images there is a varied number of elements. There is one to five objects, such as a clock, a cat or a bag of potatoes. In these images you have the opportunity to select a color and a pattern, like the blue clock or the potato patterns. The images can be seen in detail, however there are slight differences in how the colors are distributed across the canvas. A small selection of images are available for free in the Coloring Game 3. DLC 3 is available both as a paid DLC or a free fill. The Fill Mode is an upgrade to the game, which places you in front of an image and fills the canvas with the colors from the image in a pattern. The image is fixed in the canvas. Therefore, you can print out the fill pattern. Pen Mode is the printing of all images in the game, including objects. DLC 3 is compatible with the Coloring Game 3.
